Keep Your Old Books, CDs & DVDs Out of Landfill!

Books and disc media collecting dust in basements, attics, and bookshelves can be enjoyed by others or put to other uses and diverted from landfill. There are several ways to give these items a second life.

Material of recent publication and in good condition can be donated to libraries who add it to their collection or sell to raise money. Items can also be consigned or sold to used bookstores and online booksellers. Little free libraries, coffee shops, and non-profit organizations accept donations of reasonable quality. Check with the donation facility first to determine what items they accept and in what condition.

Older DRY material (including out of date almanacs, textbooks, directories) can be donated to Bay State Books collection bins regardless of condition. Bay State Books will resell, donate, or recycle the material to avoid disposing books in landfill.

For large scale or estate scale book disposal a special a one-day collection can be scheduled by visiting www.baystatebooks.com.
